

Lourenço Ribeiro

Lourenço Ribeiro has a degree in Instrumentation and Control Engineering and an MBA in Tourism & Hospitality. He began his career in Honeywell in France. Back in Portugal, he started his career path in hospitality at the Sheraton Algarve as Maintenance Manager. He was invited to take up Six Sigma Black Belt functions, first for the Sheraton Algarve and then for Starwood Portugal. He opened the Grande Real Santa Eulalia hotel, and then became regional director of the Hotéis Real group in the Algarve.

He is currently in charge of the EPIC SANA resort hotel in the Algarve and gives lectures at the Porto Business School.
