

VIII POSTGRADUATE CONFERENCE

MANAGEMENT, HOSPITALITY & TOURISM
ESGHT2016

FERNANDO PERNA

Fernando Perna is full professor at University of the Algarve (Faro, Portugal) - School of Management, Hospitality and Tourism, and he teaches in the field of economics, tourism and regional development, undergraduate and post-graduate level, in Portugal and abroad through university partnerships with Cabo Vert and Norway. He is the coordinator for the International Centre of Territory and Tourism Research of the University of the Algarve, in which he conducts multidisciplinary research teams, whose projects are commissioned through public and private sector partnerships, with R&D extension programs funded by the European Union. Among others, in the last five years he has been coordinating the research projects “Nautical tourism profile and its socio-economical potential in Algarve - Strategy for Development”, “Monitoring and Forecasting Indicators for the Tourism Industry - IMPACTUR”, available at www.impactur.pt and “Model and Indicators Development for Algarve’s Tourism Competitiveness Strategy within the Mediterranean Basin of Spain – COMPETITIVTUR”. He holds an undergraduate degree in Economics and a Masters degree in Energy and Environmental Economics and Policy, both from the ISEG School of Economics and Management, Technical University of Lisbon, and completed his PhD degree in Applied Economics from the Faculty of Economics, University of the Algarve. He has scientific publications in the areas of tourism economics, public policy, competitiveness, regional planning and development, coastal management and sustainable development. He is member of scientific and editorial boards for conferences and referee for Portuguese and international journals.
